Gas air conditioning is so quiet and free of vibration that it can be installed anywhere in the building. Even on top of it.

A gas absorption system has so few moving parts in its refrigeration cycle it never gives you – or your building – the shakes. So it's ideal for installation on rooftops. Or anywhere else vibration or noise would be a problem. What's more, gas air conditioning is economical. Gas systems have long lives . . . require little maintenance. They can use existing boiler capacity. And they run on low cost natural gas. For details call your architect, engineer or local PG&E office.

PG and E
Pacific Gas and Electric Company

"Natural gas reduced our flame cutting costs by 84%."

"That's a fact. We run our metal cutting torches for 84% less since we switched to Natural Gas. And we get a good clean cut with not nearly as much slag . . . don't have to bother with fuel cylinders either, because Natural Gas is piped right to the torch. And we use the same torches we used before. Just changed the tips. No pressure booster equipment is needed . . . standard pressure works just fine."

Those are the words of Michael Corbett, Ass't. General Production Mgr. of Todd Shipyards Corp., Alameda, Calif. What can we add? For information on how Natural Gas could improve your flame cutting operation, call our Industrial Sales Dept.
